Overview

Shareholder John Terwilleger is a litigator who handles a variety of trial and appellate matters in both state and federal courts throughout Florida and in other states, including disputes regarding complex business issues, trusts and estates, intellectual property and trade secrets, eminent domain and property rights, land use, contracts, professional services, insurance, and employment issues.

John's broad range allows him to apply experience across practice areas to each case. He focuses on understanding the complexities of each unique situation to seek the best possible outcome in the most cost-effective manner. He strives to update clients on their matters and create confidence that their matters are being handled properly.

John participated in the Globalaw Leadership Program, where he further developed his leadership skills, learned how to grow his personal brand, and built relationships with a world-wide network of participating attorneys.

A thought leader, John frequently authors articles, primarily addressing issues involving autonomous vehicles, professional liability, and intellectual property.
