Overview

Kassandra Rebull is experienced in U.S. immigration and nationality law. Her practice is focused on employment-based immigration, where she assists multinational corporations and their employees seeking nonimmigrant and immigrant visas. She represents clients in preparing immigration petitions submitted for adjudication by the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services and by the U.S. Department of State in consular matters. Kassandra puts her client's interests at the center of her representation in an effort to prepare immigration applications effectively.

Prior to joining Gunster, Kassandra worked as an immigration associate at a national firm, where she represented clients in employment-based and family-based immigration matters. She prepared immigrant and nonimmigrant visa applications for intracompany transferees, individuals with extraordinary ability, and TN professionals. Kassandra routinely represented clients before U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services in their immigration case interviews.
