Rebeka M. Burr is an eDiscovery Technology Coordinator with two decades of experience in large-scale corporate litigation, mergers and acquisitions, corporate restructuring, class action, internal and government investigations, antitrust, eDiscovery and countless hours of pro bono work. She thrives in an environment where collaboration with case teams is a priority, so that all matters are handled in line with the ever-changing needs of eDiscovery. Rebeka's expertise lies in her ability to interpret and communicate effectively from a technology perspective, and translate that to the case teams and processing vendors that she works with. She has handled all aspects of discovery, from harvest and collections to review and productions.

Prior to joining the Gunster team, Rebeka worked as a litigation support project coordinator for a global law firm located in New York, NY. She has always enjoyed the hard work and dedication that is needed in order to meet tight deadlines, manage complex reviews and prepare document productions.
