Overview

Traci Rollins is a business litigation shareholder and co-chair of the firm's Class Action Defense practice. She focuses her practice on representing public and private companies, financial institutions and other nontraditional lenders in creditors' rights, bankruptcy and commercial litigation and government investigations. She offers decades of experience in Florida and other courts across the country in insolvency, workout, forbearance and complex commercial disputes, class actions, and cross-border dispute resolution, anti-foreign suit injunctions, government investigations, and consumer and commercial regulatory compliance programs. Traci is a fellow of the Litigation Counsel of America, an honorary society representing less than one half of one percent of American litigation lawyers.

Fostering continuous trust and maintaining a strong relationship with the client is at the heart of Traci's commitment to those she serves. She strives to remain accessible and responsive to clients and colleagues alike, and focuses on taking the time to truly listen to each client's often distinct goals and concerns. In addition, Traci seeks to mitigate contention in favor of finding a business solution to her client's most complex legal problems.

Notably, Traci lectures on consumer privacy and consumer regulatory actions. She has also served as an instructor for the National Institute for Trial Advocacy, Deposition Skills Program. In addition, Traci has been featured in a variety of industry publications and recognized with numerous legal accolades.
